IMPRISONMENT

The defendant is hereby committed to the custody of the United States Bureau of Prisons to be imprisoned for a total term of 24 months.

On March 9, 2011, a federal grand jury indicted L. Martin on one count of violating 18 U.S.C. §§ 1153 and 1112, that being involuntary manslaughter. See Indictment, filed March 9, 2011 (Doc. 2). On June 10, 2011, L. Martin pled guilty to the Indictment. See Plea Agreement ¶ 3, at 2, filed June 10, 2011 (Doc. 27). The parties stipulated to a 3-level reduction in L. Martin's offense level for acceptance of responsibility, pursuant to U.S.S.G. § 3E1.1. See Plea Agreement ¶ 10(a), at 4. Plaintiff United States of America agreed that it would seek a sentence no greater than the low end of the guideline range as the Court calculates it. See Plea Agreement ¶ 10(c), at 5.

On August 16, 2011, the United States Probation Office ("USPO") disclosed a Presentence Investigation Report ("PSR") for L. Martin. The USPO calculates L. Martin's base offense level at 22, pursuant to U.S.S.G. § 2A1.4(a)(2)(B). See PSR ¶ 18, at 7. The PSR then applies a 3-level adjustment for acceptance of responsibility, pursuant to U.S.S.G. § 3E1.1 and the Plea Agreement. See PSR ¶ 24, at 8. L. Martin's total offense level is 19. See PSR ¶ 25, at 8. L. Martin has a criminal history category of II, based on 2 criminal history points. See PSR ¶ 31, at 10. A total offense level of 19 and a criminal history category of II establish a guideline imprisonment range of 33 to 41 months. See PSR ¶ 60, at 17.

The Court will accept the Plea Agreement. The Court has reviewed the PSR's factual findings with care, and, there not being objections as to those, the Court will adopt them as its own. The Court has also reviewed the PSR's guideline calculations and will adopt them. The Court has considered the factors set forth in 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a). The total offense level is 19 and the criminal history category is II, which establishes a guideline imprisonment range of 33 to 41 months.

L. Martin asks the Court to depart and/or vary downward to a sentence of community confinement or, alternatively, to serve a split sentence of 12 months and a day between the Bureau of Prisons and a halfway house or home confinement. The United States requests a sentence at the low end of the guideline imprisonment range, consistent with the Plea Agreement. The Court notes that L. Martin, while in Indian Country, was the driver of a vehicle involved in a roll-over that resulted in the death of Urias Martin, L. Martin's brother. The Court also notes that L. Martin was under the influence of alcohol at the time of the accident. After spending considerable time reviewing the 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a) factors, the Court believes that some weigh heavily in favor of a guideline sentence, while others point towards a variance. The Court will first address the circumstances which weigh in favor of a below guidelines sentence. The Court recognizes that it was a family member who died as a result of L. Martin's offense, and that L. Martin and the rest of his family suffered. The family is not requesting a heavy sentence or restitution, and the Court has received many letters which suggest that the family does not wish L. Martin be incarcerated. The Court is also impressed with L. Martin's progress and rehabilitation. While the Court does not believe that his efforts were so extraordinary as to warrant a departure, the Court believes that L. Martin's efforts to deal with his mental health issues and alcoholism are a factor that the Court can consider for a variance. A number of other factors point towards a guidelines sentence. The Court is troubled that, despite a several arrests and convictions, L. Martin has continued to have interactions with law enforcement and that he has faced no significant consequences in the criminal justice system. Furthermore, this offense is L. Martin's second DWI, and this crime is a very serious offense. The Court believes that the 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a) factors of promoting respect for the law, affording adequate deterrence -- both specific and general, and protecting the public all counsel in favor of a guidelines sentence. The Court is especially concerned about promoting respect for the law, and the Court does not believe that a sentence of home confinement or a split sentence will adequately reflect that factor. Additionally, L. Martin stopped drinking alcohol only a year ago, which is not a considerable amount of time, and the Court views his sobriety as largely the result of the federal prosecution. The Court believes that fortuitous circumstance have given L. Martin a significant amount of time to address his problems, because it is now five and a half years after the offense conduct, and the Court does not believe that L. Martin has made enough progress to justify the sentence he requests. Many people have alcohol or drug dependencies, but the Court weighs heavily the fact that L. Martin chose to drink and drive.

After careful consideration of all the factors, the Court believes that it should vary downward 3 offense levels to a sentence of 24-months imprisonment, which reflects the seriousness of the offense and promotes respect for the law. The Court believes that a L. Martin's post-offense rehabilitation, the loss of a family member, and the mental health issues that he suffered as a result of childhood abuse justify this variance. A 3-level variance establishes a total offense level of 16 and a guideline imprisonment range of 24- to 30-months imprisonment. The Court believes that a 24-month sentence provides a more just punishment, because it takes account of the progress L. Martin has made and his own loss, while recognizing the seriousness of the offense. The Court would not be justified in varying any further. The Court believes that there is still a need for specific deterrence, because none of L. Martin's previous convictions have resulted in incarceration and because this is his second DWI; this sentence will provide specific deterrence, because it is the lengthiest sentence he has to date received. A sentence of 24-months imprisonment will also deter others from committing this offense and protect the general public from both L. Martin and others who may be tempted to drink and drive. The Court believes that this sentence will avoid unwarranted sentencing disparities among defendants with similar records who have been found guilty of similar conduct, because, but for the significant time that it took to prosecute this offense, the Court does not believe that L. Martin would have achieved the rehabilitation that weighs heavily with the Court. This sentence, with the conditions of supervised release that the Court will impose, will also provide L. Martin with some needed education, training, and care to avoid a reoccurrence of this offense. The Court will imposes a period of 2-years of supervised release.

The Court concludes that a sentence 24-months imprisonment fully and effectively reflects each of the factors embodied in 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a). While the Court's task, as a district court, is not to arrive at a reasonable sentence -- it is to come up with one that reflects the factors in 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a), see United States v. Conlan, 500 F.3d 1167, 1169 (10th Cir. 2007) ("[A] district court's job is not to impose a reasonable sentence. Rather, a district court's mandate is to impose a sentence sufficient, but not greater than necessary, to comply with the purposes of section 3553(a)(2)." (citation omitted)) -- the Court believes this sentence is reasonable. And perhaps most important in this calculation, the Court believes that this sentence is sufficient, but not greater than necessary to comply with the purposes of punishment Congress set forth in the Sentencing Reform Act of 1984, Pub. L. No. 98-473, 98 Stat. 1987 (codified as amended in scattered sections of 18 U.S.C.). The Court sentences L. Martin to 24-months imprisonment and 2-years of supervised release.
